

Stories of faith, hope and love from the Far East Broadcasting Company.
Until all have heard.

Love poured out, over the radio.

Millions need help when flood waters rise. (Picture, courtesy Indian Express)

The Assam State of Northeast India has been deluged with rain recently, and FEBC radio is offering relief and comfort to millions.

The heavy monsoon rains have triggered flooding and landslides resulting in widespread damage and casualties. The disaster impacts at least 5.5 million people, many of whom have been evacuated to relief camps.

First Response Radio (FRR) is the media relief organisation developed by FEBC International and shared with the world in times of disaster, via local FEBC broadcasters. Our FRR team in India deployed to the Assam region in late June and immediately set up broadcasting on three AM stations, and one shortwave frequency. The three existing AM frequencies belong to All India Radio, the national public radio broadcaster of India and the largest radio network in the world!

FRR team leader Kenneth Edward said, “Our teams are producing programmes in two languages, Assamese and Bangla.” Assamese is an official Indian language of the state, spoken by 23 million people. Bangla is native to the Bengal region and is the official and most spoken language in Bangladesh. It is the native language to 300 million people.

Kenneth went on to say,

“Thank you for upholding the team in prayers. We are still experiencing very heavy rains, and some villages just look like an ocean!”

FRR is broadcasting vital survival information about food, safe water, healthcare, and shelter. They are also distributing wind-up radios to affected towns and villages.

FEBC New Zealand supports Feba India, and you can support this work by praying and donating today. Thank you.

Interviewing local people keeps broadcasts relevant.

Ukraine Crisis Update. War & God's Peace.

“The war is near, but He is also near, and He will never leave you.” These are some of the comforting promises that Pastor Sergey shares on his radio programmes from bombsites around Kyiv.

FEBC broadcasters and staff are still scattered across Ukraine, and they're still bringing comfort and hope to listeners everywhere. Like Sergey, programme hosts continue to use the dreadful circumstances of the war to illustrate the harsh reality of humankind's brokenness, and God's enduring promise of eternal peace.

Radio with feedback.

Many hundreds of listeners call our helpline every day, so Irina Nesterenko has expanded our counselling ministry beyond a telephone service to now include online advice and prayer via mobile devices.

Many Ukrainians have fled their homes and are now living with numerous others. Online counselling is an ideal partner to radio outreach as so many new people are listening to Christian radio, but need someone trained to talk to them privately in response to what they've heard.

Hymn for Ukraine.

Our broadcasters and videographers Dima and Darina produced this beautiful hymn amidst the destruction. Darina sings 'It is well with my soul' in English, and then new Ukrainian lyrics in Ukrainian. Why not share this with your small group or church, and pray for Ukraine.

Visit febc.nz or search YouTube for FEBCNZ to see the video.

Smiles and Sorrow.

FEBC Ukraine continue to develop the ministry and adapt to the circumstances. A new programme has been created for children, and especially refugee kids confused and displaced. Yvgeny (2nd from left) is the most famous clown in Ukraine and a faithful Christian actor. His ability to make people smile and laugh is a gift from God. Please pray that many children will find joy and hope in God as they hear his funny show and maybe meet him in the refugee camps.

Thank you for your kind donations to FEBC Ukraine. Remarkably, we are now applying for, and receiving, new FM licenses to expand our network! We are still in need of donations for programmes, staff, and expansion.

First of its kind Mobile Studio for Cambodia.

In 2023 the church in Cambodia will celebrate 100 years of the Gospel, and FEBC radio will play a central role with a first ever mobile studio vehicle to travel the country.

Thanks to FEBC supporters like you, Christian radio has been reaching out to Khmer people for decades from our studios in Phnom Penh and The Philippines. Now, we are preparing a brand-new Mobile Studio Live Broadcast vehicle to offer a truly national and diverse on-air experience.

Live social media streaming will include a great variety of guests, and young people will be more engaged and inspired when this new level of live and interactive broadcasting comes to Cambodia. Our new Mobile Studio vehicle will be a first of its kind in Cambodia.

We are raising funds for this new project now. You can donate by writing 'Cambodia mobile studio' on any donation form. Thank you.

Meet Cassandra James.

If you've ever wondered who processes your donations and sends your receipts, meet Cassandra James. 'Cass' has served with FEBC since 2008 and works from our satellite office in her hometown of Masterton. Cass is married to Corrie and they have two young adult children.

"I love knowing that our efforts here in New Zealand are blessing millions of listeners around the world."

200 hours of inspiration in your pocket!

Our team in Vietnam are among the most innovative creators around. We use MP3 players to deliver gospel outreach and teaching to many thousands. If people don't have access to radio or the internet, we supply them with digital devices called 'Speakerboxes.' With a microSD card people can listen to 200 hours of teaching and inspiration before we need to revisit them with new cards.

To put 200 hours of inspiration in a Vietnamese pocket, please donate today and write 'Vietnam' on any donation form. Thank you.

Stay on Mission.

A biblical devotion to inspire passion for Jesus and prayers for the nations.

This month's scripture is Genesis 3:8-10

Apart from the sad circumstances, this encounter has much to teach us about the LORD God who loves us and pursues us to this day.

Here are four principles and prayer points for our life and mission:

1. God makes his presence known, and people were created to recognise him.

Adam and Eve heard "the sound of the LORD God" in their world. Whether as thunder, a whisper, people sense the reality of God. Pray that FEBC listeners will hear God's presence in their daily lives, and listen carefully.

2. People are prone to hide from God.

Whether from fear, shame, or selfish ambition, like Adam and Eve most people try to run their lives separately from God. Pray that listeners have courage and humility to recognise God's voice and turn towards him positively.

3. God calls us by name with voice and personal words.

"Where are you?" is a sweet invitation to actually converse with God and experience his grace and forgiveness. Pray that millions of listeners hear God calling their names and surrender happily to his relentless pursuit.

4. Eventually, all people answer God's call.

Finally Adam replied to the LORD. Pray that listeners come out of hiding and get honest with God, confessing their fears, and eventually obey him wholeheartedly.

Kia kaha, take courage,
Matt Perry
