

Message from David Hammond, Board Chair of FEBC in New Zealand

Ngā mihi ki a kotou, ko David Hammond Taku ingoa.

Hello friends,

Thank you for your support. It means so much that you partner with us so that people in less-reached nations can hear the gospel in their own language.

Recently, we've made some important changes to our Charitable Trust, and I want to explain what that means. I want to reassure you that our goals, our focus, and the people behind the scenes are the same.

New Zealand's charity laws have changed over the years, requiring us to establish a new trust rather than simply update our original one. So, we have created a new trust to align more explicitly with our purposes and objectives as a gospel broadcasting organisation.

This was the perfect opportunity to express our vision for communicating Christ to the world by media, with new clarity and breadth in this modern digital age. We are very pleased with our renewed trust deed, which is unashamedly gospel-focused and better reflects our international mission.

We believe these changes are blessed by the Holy Spirit and will help us continue to focus on the ministry you are a part of, bringing the hope of Christ to the nations.

As we transition to this new trust, you will receive a few updates from the team, especially around the new bank account details. I commend these changes to you, and I want to assure you that while the structure may be new, nothing else has changed.

We're the same people, with the same vision, and now better aligned for the future, officially, with our mission of communicating the good news among the nations by media.

So, tēnā koutou, tēnā koutou, no reira, tēnā kotou katoa. Be blessed this year. And again, thank you so much for your support for FEBC.

Ka kite.

Until all have heard,
